9. [] Met with Mr. Jack Matteson, Chief Investigator, House Foreign Operations and Government Information Subcommittee, who advised that Representative Moss would appreciate some information on two FBIS publications to brief himself to respond to a newspaperman who had apparently complained that the Blue Book contains different information than the White Book and is not available to the press. Mr. Matteson indicated that the Congressman is interested in the distribution of the Blue and White Books; who prints them; numbers of copies printed; and the cost. He would also appreciate such advice as we could provide as to whether the Blue Book might be made available to members of the press.

10. [] Met with Mr. William Gullledge, Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee, and discussed with him for Committee use the probable number of persons involved with regard to authority for retroactive payment by "administrative agencies." Mr. Gullledge is using the figure 49,000 to include personnel of NSA, CIA, TVA, Bureau of the Census, Panama Canal Corporation and NASA.

Mr. Gullledge advised that signing by the President would probably be scheduled for some time early next week with somewhat elaborate formal ceremonies at the White House.

11. [] I attempted to see Senator Daniel Brewster (D., Md.) or his Special Assistant, John F. Sullivan, but neither was available during the afternoon.

12. [] At his request, I met with Mr. Al Westphal, House Foreign Affairs Committee, regarding a request to him by [] concerning a possible gap in legislative oversight concerning executive investigation of private American citizens engaging in espionage or subversive activities against the United States in foreign areas. (See Memo for the Record for details.)
